

Privacy policy fix

Our SMS campaign was rejected by the carriers. This is the change needed on usekiba.ai/privacy to get it approved. · 29 July 2026

What happened

Before approving a business to send text messages, the mobile carriers review its privacy policy. The reviewer landed on usekiba.ai/privacy and the campaign was rejected under Twilio error 30908.

Two required disclosures are missing from that page:

1. A statement that mobile numbers and SMS consent are never shared with third parties or affiliates for marketing or promotional purposes.
2. Message frequency — how often we text people.

There is also a line in the Sharing Information section working against us. It says we may share information with service providers including messaging providers, with no exception carved out for phone numbers. A reviewer reads that as “they might pass numbers on” — which is the “conflicting information” the rejection cites.

What to change

Two sections on usekiba.ai/privacy. Please use the wording below as-is — the bold sentences are close to word-for-word what the carriers scan for, so rewording them risks another rejection.

REPLACE THE “TEXT MESSAGES” SECTION WITH

By using KIBA, you agree to receive recurring automated text messages related to your account, goals, reminders, check-ins, and product experience. Message frequency varies — you'll typically receive one daily check-in at a time you choose, any reminders you ask for, and replies to messages you send. Message and data rates may apply. Reply STOP to any message to unsubscribe immediately, or HELP for support.

No mobile information is shared with third parties or affiliates for marketing or promotional purposes. We do not sell, rent, or share your mobile number or your SMS consent with anyone for marketing purposes.

REPLACE THE “SHARING INFORMATION” SECTION WITH

We do not sell your personal information. We may share information with trusted service providers that help us operate KIBA, including messaging providers, payment processors, analytics tools, hosting providers, and customer support tools — strictly to deliver the service, and never for their own marketing.

Mobile phone numbers and SMS consent are excluded from all sharing. No mobile information is shared with third parties or affiliates for marketing or promotional purposes, and mobile opt-in data is never shared with anyone.

One small extra

That page lists usekiba@gmail.com as the contact. support@usekiba.ai is live and forwards to the same inbox, and it is the address our text messages give out. Worth switching so the two match — reviewers do notice mismatches between a policy and the messages themselves.

Already handled on the build side

The campaign submission now points carriers directly at our own policy page, onboarding.usekiba.ai/privacy, which already carries all of the required language. That is the belt-and-braces fix.

The marketing-site page still needs updating, because usekiba.ai is the website registered against the brand and a reviewer can check it either way.

What happens next

Send word once the page is live. We will verify the wording actually shipped, then resubmit the campaign the same day — resubmission is free and there is no penalty for a second attempt. Carrier approval then takes 1–3 business days.

This is the last gate before KIBA can text Android users.
